Vizcayne Unveils their First International Designer Showcase by Morgan Miller

In the heart of downtown Miami sits Vizcayne—a luxury development encompassing two identical 49-story towers with panoramic views and a special celebration of cultural flavor.

In a gesture that honors the influx of international buyers contributing to the recovery of the South Florida real estate market, Vizcayne has announced their first ever International Designer Showcase. The nations of Brazil, Venezuela, the United States, Columbia, and Spain will each be represented in five custom-designed two-bedroom model units.

Javier Martin, founder and principal designer of Spain's luxury BALTUS collection, lends his Mediterranean influence to the project. Each piece from his collection of contemporary, high-end furniture has been handcrafted by highly skilled Spanish artisans to incorporate the subtle use of clean lines and elegant textures. The result is a beautifully refined aesthetic that seamlessly incorporates the breathtaking Miami views.

Originally from Brazil, designer Carlos Forato of Forato Design Group paired up with Saccaro to represent the South American country's intoxicating interior design style. By incorporating natural wood elements, colorful mosaics and space-enhancing mirrors, Forato produces an organically enchanting space imbued with the colorful, exotic nuances of Brazil.

The all-star group of designers is rounded off by Carlos Polo, a Colombian designer whose design experience spans the breadth of 25 years. Venezuelan Maria Jose De Caires-Murphy, already a tremendous presence in South Florida with Azul Y Company, has also dedicated her talents to the project, as well as Stephen G. of Interiors by Stephen G., with a vivid, retro take on North American design.
